FISCAL COURT

Pipeline meeting rejected

Magistrates vote against developer's offer to ask questions

By Ben Carlson

The Anderson County Fiscal Court rejected an offer from Bluegrass Pipeline officials to answer questions about the controversial project during a meeting last Tuesday night.

Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway said the company made the offer, but recommended that the fiscal court turn it down.

Officer Joe Saunier says he handled about 20 cases last year at the middle school in which students sent, or 'sexted,' what he describes as pornographic material to one another. He and school officials are working on ways to combat the problem.

His youngest sexting case involved an 11-year-old female Anderson County Middle School student, school resource officer Joe Saunier said.

The 11-year-old's friend talked to her mom about an inappropriate photo her friend had sent to another boy. The parent contacted Saunier, who arrived at the boys' house to warn his parents about the incoming image.

The boy had already messaged a photo back, Saunier said.

Saunier said he wished he knew

What is 'sexting'?

The advent of cell phones and other devices with cameras give people the ability to photograph themselves and instantly send those images to others via text messages, hence "sexting."

School resource officer Joe Saunier describes underage sexting as any student sending semi-naked or completely nude photos of themselves to others.

"They have to understand, it is child pornography," Saunier said.

Marching Bearcats victorious, return to state semi-finals

From staff reports

The Anderson County marching band recently placed first out of 13 marching bands competing at the 4A East regional competition this past weekend in Berea.

There were three visual and three music judges, and the band took first in every category, Band Director Patrick Brady said via e-mail.

"This is by far the best I've ever heard my band playing and marching," Brady said. "It is been a very tough season because I have taken them to nothing but very tough competition and my method

Only four bands will move on to compete in the state finals.

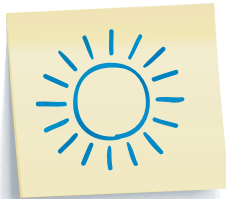

Last year the band broke the high school's record by placing third at the state finals competition.

charged with driving under the influence since 2008. He was also charged in 2010 and 2011, according to court documents.

Chisholm claimed he hadn't been drinking when stopped by Lawrenceburg Police Department officer Nathan Doty, who reported seeing him swerve and nearly hit a guardrail after pulling out of a parking lot onto US 127, according to court documents.

Doty reported smelling alcohol and that Chisholm had red, glassy eyes when he pulled him over around 10 a.m.

Doty reported that Chisholm failed a series of sobriety tests before giving up and telling Doty, "I don't want to waste my time."

Chisholm was administered a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) test, which detects the amount of ethyl alcohol in a person's system. According to court documents, Chisholm's BAC was .295. The legal limit is 0.08.

Following his arrest, Chisholm was arraigned in Anderson District Court, but the charges were waived and sent to a grand jury, which indicted him on felony DUI and other traffic charges.

A fourth DUI conviction would mean Chisholm would spend at least 120 days in jail without the possibility of parole, according to transportation.ky.gov.

He would also be required to spend one year in alcohol or substance abuse treatment and lose his driver's license for a minimum of five years, according to the website.

Magistrates OK changes to gravel road specs

Required width on 'orphan' roads shrink to 30 feet

By Ben Carlson
News staff

Residents living on any of the 120 miles of the county's "orphan" roads shouldn't hold out much hope that county government will someday soon take over the maintenance of those roads.

Magistrates did tweak the county's existing gravel road requirements when they met last Tuesday night, but stopped well short of making the demands spelled out in those requirements easier for residents to meet in order for their roads to be taken over.

The only change OK'd was to shrink the required right of way on roads from 50 feet to 30 feet for them to be placed under county maintenance. That change was tentatively approved, but is subject to a public hearing and two public readings before magistrates can vote the change into law.

Other requirements, such as the depth of the gravel and shoulder work, remain the same, meaning residents on orphan roads with no maintenance would have to first spend tens or even hundreds of thousands of dollars to meet those specifications before their roads could be adopted for county maintenance.

That those gravel road requirements even exist came as a surprise. When a group of Herndon Road residents lobbied the court to fix and maintain their road earlier this year, it was said that the gravel road specifications from 2006 were never formally adopted, leaving the county without any specifications at all.

During last Tuesday's meeting, those specifications were now said to exist, and that they were voted on and approved in 2006.

During the meeting, Magistrate Kenny Barnett questioned the need for roads to have a 50-foot right of way.

"What is it on other roads?" asked Barnett, who represents the county's Sixth District.

"Thirty feet," replied Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway.

"We need to be consistent," said Magistrate David Ruggles, who later made a motion to narrow the right of way to 30 feet that was unanimously approved and will now be subjected to a pair of public hearings.

Conway, who voted against the gravel road specifications as a magistrate in 2006, said he didn't like them at the time and still doesn't. However, he said there is now way for the fiscal court to begin taking over roads that don't meet minimum specifications.

"One road, that I won't name, if we take it over it will cost $120,000 to get it to specs," Conway said. "If you want to start taking on roads, the road fund will be busted."

"It's up to the magistrates on this court. If you want to spend a couple hundred thousand this year, next year and the year after that, the road fund will go broke."

saying he has been to similar meetings and company officials simply do not answer questions.

"I went to meeting [in Frankfort] and they didn't answer anything there," said Ruggles. "I asked the CEO how many states they operate in, and he said he didn't know. The whole day was that way. They just talk in circles."

"If they come here they are not going to tell us anything ... I guarantee that. I vote no."

When notified of the decision, pipeline officials said it didn't come as a surprise given how well they are doing in Anderson County.

"Given how successful we've already been in Anderson County at acquiring easements, we can certainly see why the fiscal court doesn't see the need for additional public information or communications opportunities there," said Tom Droege, a spokesperson for the company.

"... it is obvious by the reaction we have seen in the early stages of our easement negotiations that landowners in Anderson County see the benefits and understand the opportunities that the project brings to Kentucky in general and Anderson County in particular."

"We are pleased with the response so far from Anderson County landowners to the Bluegrass Pipeline project. We are also ready and willing to take part in a public forum in Anderson County."

Ruggles asked if the company was proposing coming here to answer the fiscal court's questions or the public's.

"They didn't say anything about the public," Conway said. "I told them we've had a meeting and they didn't come."

That meeting was held earlier this year when the fiscal court hosted a public forum on the pipeline issue at the Extension building.

Nearly 100 people packed that meeting with most saying they are opposed to the pipeline.

No one from the company attended due to a meeting that had already been scheduled in Williamstown that night.

The meeting concluded with the fiscal court voting unanimously to oppose the pipeline.

The 150-mile stretch of the Bluegrass Pipeline that would run through Kentucky crosses 13 counties - including Franklin and Anderson counties where it comes very close to the southeastern-most corner of Shelby County near the Graefenburg, Waddy, Harrisonville and Southville areas

Armstrong forwarded the murder charge to the grand jury and kept Luttrell's bail at $500,000 despite a plea from his attorney, public defender Casey Holland, to have it reduced.

During cross examination of state police Det. Steven Spurlock, Holland attempted to raise several doubts about what happened that day, including that Briscoe had a handgun when he was shot.

Spurlock, the detective, confirmed the handgun was found at the scene.

"Was it fired?" asked Holland.

"No," said Spurlock, who added he didn't know if it was brandished but confirmed that the gun was found near Briscoe's body.

Following some preliminary questions from Holland, County Attorney Bobbi Jo Lewis objected to further questions when the subject of the second gun came up, but Armstrong, the judge, allowed Holland to continue.

While requesting a reduction in Luttrell's bail, Holland said there is "some indication of justifiable homicide," a stance he confirmed after the hearing.

"Given the fact that Mr. Briscoe had a handgun at his feet, we're looking into that," Holland said by phone.

Lewis, the prosecutor, objected to reduced bail, saying that she believes the murder charge will be substantiated by a grand jury.

Armstrong refused to reduce the bail, noting a long history of violent offenses, including violation of a protective order.

Luttrell reportedly fled Anderson County after the shooting, taking his wife, Leslie, with him against her will.

Leslie Luttrell was reportedly staying at Briscoe's residence before the shooting.

Spurlock told Holland that the Briscoe and Leslie Luttrell dated from 2000 to 2009 but were "friends" at the time of Briscoe's death.

Gary Luttrell was found several days later at a residence in Chilli-cothe, Ohio, reportedly at the home of a cousin.

Leslie Luttrell told police escaped when Luttrell stopped at a vacant residence in Shepherdsville to use the restroom.

The cousin in Ohio told Spurlock that Gary Luttrell said Leslie Luttrell contacted him from Briscoe's residence before the shooting and asked him to come get her, which contradicts statements she made to police and others that she was taken against her will.

The cousin also told Spurlock that Luttrell admitted to shooting and killing Briscoe.

To escape from Luttrell, Spurlock said Leslie Luttrell told him she bolted from the vacant home in Shepherdsville while Gary Luttrell "sat on a 5-gallon bucket," to go to the bathroom.

"She flagged down a vehicle and asked the female driver to take her to the police," Spurlock said.

Spurlock said his investigation revealed that the Luttrells were spotted earlier that day in Nelson County, where a Leslie Luttrell told someone at a grocery store that her husband had killed Briscoe and that she had been taken against her will.

Spurlock also said that Briscoe's brother, Gary, told him he was at the Fairview Road residence two days earlier when Luttrell arrived and threatened Steve Briscoe.

Spurlock said he interviewed some of Briscoe's neighbors, but none heard a gunshot that morning. He said he interviewed workers in a Lexington pawn shop and found out that Luttrell was there in the days leading up to the shooting and purchased .410 shotgun shells, the same caliber gun used in the shooting.

Spurlock testified that Leslie Luttrell was present when Briscoe was shot, but didn't actually see the incident.

He said the .410 shotgun was found on Ashby Road in Anderson County next to a vehicle used by Gary Luttrell to leave the scene of the shooting.

Spurlock said Gary Luttrell and Briscoe had a longstanding dispute over Leslie Luttrell.

Frankfort movie theater to close

From The State Journal

Chakeres Theatre has settled a discrimination complaint for $5,000 and will close its Frankfort movie theater in January, according to a report Monday by the Kentucky Human Rights Commission.

The company, which operates a theater in the Franklin Square Shopping Center, denied any violation of state law and affirmed it will comply with civil rights laws. The closure will leave Frankfort without a first-run movie theater.

Anita Dowd, an executive staff advisor for the Kentucky Commission on the Deaf and Hard of Hearing, filed a complaint with the commission in July 2011, alleging Chakeres failed to provide hearing aids or captioning services to watch a movie.

The two sides came to an agreement before the commission held a final hearing in the matter, according to a press release from the human rights commission.

Chakeres agreed to pay Dowd $5,000 and told the commission it planned to close its Franklin Square theater in January, the release says. The commission approved the agreement Thursday during a meeting in Louisville.

"If the company does begin operations in Kentucky it is required to provide auxiliary aids and services as necessary to deaf and hard-of-hearing individuals and to comply with all civil rights law and undergo commission compliance monitoring for a period of time," the commission said in its release.

Chakeres officials could not be reached for comment by press time Tuesday.

Woman leaves $285,000 to Frankfort Humane Society

By Kristina Belcher and Michelle Sokol
The State Journal

After Jean Wheeler's mother, Jean Gravitt, died in December, she got to work.

She and her brother, Jim Anderson, cleaned up her mother's home, painted, cleaned the carpet and put it up for sale — knowing the entire time they wouldn't receive a penny of the profit.

Gravitt left her entire estate, totaling almost $285,000, to the Franklin County Humane Society.

"They're not wealthy people. They're people who work hard," Wheeler's lawyer, Bill Kirkland, said.

Kirkland said Gravitt's children never once tried to break the will to keep the money for themselves.

"They didn't try to take advantage or make a deal," Kirkland said. "They just said, 'OK, we'll do it.'"

Sam Marcus, president of the humane society, said the money gives them a jump-start in a capital campaign to build a new shelter.

"We are thrilled about it," Marcus said.

The humane society has been hoping to move away from the flood plain. Its current shelter on Kentucky Avenue has suffered water damage numerous times in the past.

"It's certainly not our intention to build a Taj Mahal of shelters," Marcus said. "We don't feel that's appropriate and we don't feel that's necessary."

Marcus said they estimate the new building will cost around $2 million.

Gravitt's estate will be added to a PETCO Foundation grant — worth $77,000 — and $40,000 currently in their new building fund.

In total, the humane society has almost $400,000 toward its goal.

Marcus said the money means they can start seriously looking at possible sites for a new shelter.

"We owe it to Jean Hill Gravitt, Jean Wheeler and her brother to seriously take steps toward a new shelter," Marcus said. "We will certainly take seriously the responsibility to get the Humane Society a new home in her honor."

The humane society was scheduled to hold a presentation ceremony for Gravitt's donation at the shelter at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Kentucky Press News Service

Time to break out the sweaters, jackets and wool blankets as cold air invades Kentucky for the next several days. Tuesday's high in the upper 50s was likely to be the warmest day of the next several, according to the National Weather Service.

On Wednesday, the high will be only in the low 50s with an overnight low in the mid-30s and a slight chance of rain.

By Thursday, the daytime high could only be in the upper 40s with a 30 percent chance for showers.

Friday is likely to bring sunshine with a high in the upper 40s. The overnight low could plummet to the mid to upper 20s, the weather service said. Saturday will produce partly sunny skies with a high in the mid-50s and only a 10 percent chance for rain. Saturday night's low could be in the low to mid-30s.

By next week, the highs will be climbing back into the 60s.

Paid labor trumps free labor any day

Not accepting pipeline officials' request for Q&A a mistake

Column as I see 'em ...

Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway made a good decision and a questionable one during last Tuesday night's meeting of the Anderson County Fiscal Court.

Let's I be perceived as always focusing on the bad, let's start with the good.

Conway informed magistrates that he had recently rejected the Shelby County Detention Center's offer of work release inmates, a wise choice once you think it all the way through.

On the surface that might sound like a ridiculous decision, given that instead of having inmates mow grass, scrub toilets, work at the recycling center or whatever else they do for free, taxpayers are now paying actual employees to do that work.

So does that mean Conway is bloating the county's payroll instead of getting "free" labor? Hardly. Taxpayers were shelling out more money to fetch inmates from Shelby County than it costs to hire a few people on a part time basis to do that work.

Think about it. A county employee had to make two round trips to Shelbyville each day (about 100 miles total) to pick up and bring back inmates. Along with gas and vehicle costs, taxpayers were also paying at least two hours of wages for that employee to go back and forth while nothing here got done.

As tough as it is to find any work at all these days, those looking for labor work shouldn't have to compete with inmates for jobs, particularly where they live here and pay taxes.

Then, while inmates were here working, they required much more oversight, training and an occasional figurative kick in the backside to get them to do anything of value at all.

Now, people hired to perform those tasks are in place and know that if they don't put in a decent day's labor for their pay, they'll soon be down the road.

Lazy inmates? They'll be down the road, too, but back to their jail cells where getting fired is the least of their concern.

But there's more to this issue than money and no-account inmates. There is also a school of thought that if local government needs something done, it ought to spend taxpayer dollars to employ a local person (if at all possible) to do that work.

As tough as it is to find any work at all these days, those looking for labor work shouldn't have to compete with inmates for jobs, particularly where they live here and pay taxes.

From what I've been told, not using inmates has already paid dividends for taxpayers. Local people have been hired, are doing a better job and when the numbers are crunched doing it for less than it costs to have inmates perform the same tasks.

Now for the questionable.

Conway told magistrates that the developers of the Bluegrass Pipeline asked if he'd like them to come here and answer the fiscal court's questions.

Conway immediately rejected that offer and recommended that magistrates do the same.

Conway referenced previous meetings and conversations where he said he couldn't get a straight answer on his questions, and said he doesn't expect that to change if the company's representatives come here for a meeting.

He didn't make that decision alone. Magistrates unanimously voted against the meeting, with Magistrate David Ruggles backing Conway by saying company officials "talk in circles."

Perhaps they're right, but it certainly would have been better to invite them into town and have them not answer questions in front of a room full of people than not have them come here at all.

Frankly, I've heard and read the complaint about the pipeline developer refusing to provide information to individuals and media outlets far and wide, and I just don't get it.

Not long after this issue surfaced, I did an extensive interview with a fellow from Williams who answered every one of my questions in detail.

Of course one could quibble about the veracity of his responses, but he never once declined to answer a question or shy away from difficult ones.

It makes me wonder just how hard some folks — including others in the press — are working to get answers, or are they simply not interested in hearing a narrative that doesn't jive with their own beliefs, notions or biases involving "big oil" and the like.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Practice what you preach, Milburn

To the editor:

I read Mr. Jerry Millburn's guest column (Hypocrites on school board know they're wrong) in the paper a few weeks ago and would like to share some observations.

Mr. Milburn made a reference to prayer being in the closet. Sure, the Bible makes that statement in Matthew 6:6. The only problem is that refers to personal prayer and not group.

If his observation were correct our worship services would be without prayer, as well as other public prayers. He asked, "Who am I to judge?" and then makes many judgments concerning many individuals that he knows very little or nothing at all about.

An atheist? The way he quotes the Bible it appears he must have someone in his past that loved him and taught him of God's word. I get the impression he may be more an agnostic than atheist. But who am I to judge?

I agree, Mr. Milburn, that outsiders should not try to direct the affairs of Anderson County. I feel we have ample folks to make our decisions. I would not want anyone to prevent his right to express his opinion (freedom of speech). I am very much concerned about the thoughts of our local citizens. I like the fact that in our society the majority rules (Democratic).

I thought it very strange that he would make any reference of the Muslim religion being the majority. He obviously knows very little of the Muslim faith. Were he to make those same kinds of references to Muslim prayers in Iran or any other Muslim nation he would be absent a head. Isn't it nice to live in a society that we can express our personal opinions without fear? They would not give you the opportunity of court or law.

I defend Mr. Milburn's right to sit in a meeting where prayer to God is a part. You should not be asked to leave. Christians should not feel a need to leave in order to say our prayers. Someone said, "You will never remove prayer from the schools as long as there are tests." I disagree with some of the actions of the school board but I have to accept their decisions because that apparently is the opinion of their constituents.

Prayer, Mr. Milburn, is not intended to convert you or change your mind on your personal beliefs. It is simply to follow our beliefs that God can guide and direct our lives. Therefore we ask for his blessings on the decisions made during the meeting. As you say, you don't believe in a god, then what would be wrong with asking his blessings?

Also, another area that is important to this discussion is that there is no comment found in any official government document that makes reference to separation of church and state. The only statement you will find is that the state shall not dictate religion. In other words the state is to stay out of the religious area of our lives. It doesn't prevent religion from being found in the affairs of the state.

I am sorry you don't want Christians to practice what they believe while you maintain your right to practice what you believe.

Hope remains for local atheist

To the editor:

This is in response to the guest column written by Jerry Milburn that appeared two weeks ago.

Sir, with all due respect, you do err. You see, God had no intentions to dismiss his holy name from the nation, public or any other document set forth by those who refused to trust in him. The Bible didn't get this far for nothing. Matthew 10:33: "But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."

Take for example, Daniel, Chapter 3: "for which this ruler took upon himself to make a graven image that all should bow down to it. For when the sound of all kinds of music plays, you should fall down and worship the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king has set up. Whosoever falleth not down to worship this golden image shall in the same hour be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace." Daniel 3:14-19: "Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them, is it true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, do you not serve my gods or worship the golden image which I have set up? Now if you are ready that at what time you hear the sound of the music, you fall down and worship the image which I have made; well,

But if you worship not, you will be cast the same hour into the midst of the fiery furnace; and who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands? Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, answered and said to the King, O Nebuchadnezzar, we are not careful to answer thee in this matter. If it be so, Our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand O King. But if not, be it known unto thee O King, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up."

If laws require HHS and IRS to force you into obedience such as Obamacare, is this not like the music back then that people were told to bow to worship an image? And you worry about public prayer? I would think that laws to protect us are the ones we need obey, not the ones that dictate our beliefs, livelihoods or our dreams of what we want to become.

One day Jerry, you will face a tribulation not seen before, and you will wish you could escape and will not be able to. (1Thessalonians 5:3). The only hope you will have is in Christ.

Yes, I fight for my liberties, my civil rights, my freedoms from a tyranny type government that tells me "There shall be no more God that we will remove him in every area of your life." Doesn't this step on my very freedoms and liberties as an American? If you want God to leave you alone, he will. In fact, he already did for you when you asked him to. However, tolerance is key here. Yes, you have to tolerate things that annoy you as much as I do; it's a fact of life.

By the way, it's the law to stop when a hearse is passing you to show respect for the dead. If we have to do that for the dead, why then are we forbidden doing that for the living?

As a majority of us are in fact Christian, yes, we do open our games in prayer, and some even open meetings in prayers. Now does that mean you have to bow your head and pray if you do not believe? No. Does that mean you have to be patient and wait for others, or at least tolerant of them? Is it so intolerable to care for another human being?

So let's be clear, if this music plays, and I were told by law to bow to another god or deny Christ, or forbidden to pray to him, I cannot and I will not.

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego had it right. I am not careful to answer thee in this matter, for my God is able to deliver me, but even if not, know this, I will worship the Lord God even in public, nor will I dim my very light before men that Jesus is Lord. For what man lights a candle and hides it under the bushel? Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. (Matthew 5:15a, 16.)

Satan tested Jesus on the Mount and also misquoted scriptures and was rebuked. At least for someone who claims atheism, you sure know your way around the word of God as if you cared for it to quote it in public, even in a newspaper. My guess is it's only a matter of time before God has his way with you. Which brings me to this next point.

You still have hope Jerry. God sent his only begotten Son to die for us on a cross to save us from sin, and rose him up again on the third day so that we will have life through him. He did this out of love for us, while we were yet sinners. He did this for you too Jerry, even when you don't believe in him. Now I ask you Jerry, if you died tonight, would your soul go into a fiery furnace meant for Satan and his demons or will God really truly deliver you from it?

Choice is yours, and yours alone. I for one will pray for you that you turn to God. He died for you too, sir.

Cops & Rodders a great event

To the editor:

The annual Cops & Rodders 2013 Car Show to benefit the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys & Girls Ranch and the Anderson D.A.R.E. program's Shop With a Cop with Sheriff Troy Young hosting the event was a huge success.

We send our sincere thanks to Sheriff Young, the Anderson County Sheriff's Office and all those supporting this event and helping out. Your support and help of this event ensures we continue to reach Kentucky's youth in a positive manner.

The Ranch provides a week-long camp experience to boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 11 from throughout Kentucky who could not otherwise afford to go to camp. We strive to redirect the lives of these children, to build their self esteem, moral character and teach them to have respect for themselves, others and law enforcement professionals.

For more information, call 270-362-8660. Thanks again for an outstanding event.

Executive director, Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys & Girls Ranch

Chewing on news leftovers

A little known fact about me — I am the queen of leftovers.

Endless possibilities leave me paralyzed, gnawing on a block of cheddar cheese because I'm too overwhelmed by choice to cook a proper meal for myself.

Give me an almost bare pantry, and I can whip up something pretty delicious.

OK, that adjective should probably be "edible," not delicious.

Consider this week's column an exercise in leftovers: the last week's tidbits layered in an informational news sandwich. Great. Now I'm hungry.

Speaking of hungry, look for an upcoming article about Harvest for Haiti, where many Lawrenceburg residents plan to make 100,000 nutritious, rice-based meals for the hungry in Haiti in one day. They're also trying to raise $20,000. The session costs $25 per person or for the entire day, and is limited to 75-100 people per session (there are three sessions scheduled as of press time). More information will be in next week's paper, but if my short blurb is enough for you to want to sign up, contact 502-418-3058.

A note that didn't make it into last week's city council news: Rx prescription cards offered by the Kentucky League of Cities are available at city hall for those without insurance interested in getting a discount on prescriptions. Stop by city hall to pick one up if you're interested.

A congrats goes out to the Anderson County marching band for winning the KMEA 4A East regionals for the second year in a row. I thought I heard some honking outside Saturday as the marching band returned home triumphant, and I guess it wasn't my imagination (pun intended). I've written about this before, but the dedication of the students, parents and band director Patrick Brady is crazy in a good way. And on Saturday, it seems that com-

Garden provides natural help for ragweed sniffles

We are such creatures of habit. We know what we like and this time of year: chili. Chili with meat or beans, or both. Chili with spaghetti or macaroni, or both. Chili with cheese or onions, or both. When it gets chilly outside, we make chili inside. Cas-seroles or Crock-Pot soups come next.

It is our habit to make foods that make us feel good. Whether they are good for us is another matter. If we follow Mother Nature we can do both. Certain foods that are abundant at certain times of the year, seem to provide us with all the right vitamins and nutrients that are needed to fight off seasonal ills.

Cheryl Steenerson
Columnist

Allergy sufferers have been cursing ragweed for the last several weeks. The dreaded combination of being stopped up, with a runny nose, can just drive you crazy or lead to a sinus infection.

Those who have been taking a tablespoon or two of honey every day may have suffered less, but the broccoli, cauliflower and greens in the garden can do even more. Your daily diet is the key to staying healthy, but allergy sufferers need to focus their diet.

Broccoli is one food that can help. It's packed with Vitamin C, which helps relieve allergies, and it clears out blocked sinuses. Cauliflower and cabbage will do that, too. Just one cup a day is all you need. Both pumpkins and kale work to unblock sinuses and provide Vitamin A, another allergy-relieving vitamin. The carotenoids in both kale and collard greens eases allergy issues.

Want a natural antihistamine? Try onions and garlic to unstuff the nose and limit inflammation.

A healthy diet all around is everyone's best protection. Even if you do eat a healthy diet, you might try a multivitamin, too. Together, they serve to protect you from all kinds of things, kind of like mulch.

You should be mulching all of your newly planted trees, shrubs and perennials to protect them from the ills of the harsh winter months. Their roots are new and relatively shallow, making them more susceptible to killing cold. Mulch works like a blanket to keep them warm and if you used anatural mulch, you fertilize a little, too.

With October fast coming to an end, we gardeners are finishing up the last chores of the season. It seems that we start and end the season with weeding, pruning and mulching. Those of you with gardeners on your Christmas shopping list may want to take time now, while things are still fresh in your mind, to jot down a list.

Sure, you could take the easy route and just get a gift card at your local garden center, or you could prove you were listening and get something more specific, like a rare or coveted plant. You can do it by mail order catalogue or online shopping and they can deliver it in the spring.

Browse through those gardening catalogues that got piled in a corner of the living room or go online. Nature Hills Nursery is one of the biggest online garden centers in the Midwest. Shooting Star Nursery offers a huge selection of native Kentucky plants and its practically in our own back yard.

A lot of gardeners are rose fans and Spring Valley Roses and Willoway Nurseries both cater to Midwest gardeners. If you want to get the kids into gardening try a wildflower seed-bomb slingshot from Rodales. Gardens Alive has a whole host of great garden products, including some nifty tools. The best part is that you can order your gift to be delivered at the right time and you didn't even have to wrap it. Just put a card under the tree.

Now, break out the burlap, sheets or whatever you use to protect your tender perennials. The frost is upon us and there is no going back. Then grab the cornbread and crackers and hover over a bowl of hot chile. It may be October, but we can still warm our hearts by simply lifting a spoon. Happy growing.

Know the facts before starting gluten-free diet

Recent publicity about celiac disease and the gluten-free diet has led to misconceptions about gluten and its role in weight loss.

As a consequence, many individuals without gluten intolerance are following a gluten-free diet.

Celiac disease is an inherited, autoimmune disorder in which some people's gastrointestinal tract cannot properly digest gluten, a protein found in wheat, barley and rye. In celiac disease, gluten destroys some of the intestine's lining as it passes through the digestive tract, which hinders nutrient absorption. Only 1 percent of the population has been diagnosed with celiac disease, while 30 percent of the population carries its genetic markers.

It is estimated that 1 in 133 people show signs of gluten sensitivity, which like celiac disease include indigestion, bloating, diarrhea and fatigue. An immune system response to gluten is thought to cause non-celiac gluten intolerance. A gluten-free diet is the current treatment for those with either disease.

The reason why a gluten-free diet became a fad weight-loss diet is unknown. But the popularity of the diet has caused the gluten-free market to explode in recent years with gluten-free products commanding a premium price. A recent survey found that only 10 percent of the people who purchase gluten-free products do so out of necessity. The other 90 percent purchase them because of the perceived health benefits of going gluten free.

Joan Martin

In fact, some who have been diagnosed with celiac disease may find that switching to a gluten-free diet causes them to gain weight. Gluten-free foods tend to have a higher amount of fat, refined carbohydrates and calories to make up for the taste gluten gives food. While the gluten-free diet is higher in fat and calories, it is often lower in important nutrients including fiber, iron, folate, carbohydrates, niacin, calcium and vitamin B12.

If you're interesting in weight loss or maintenance, consider adding more fruits, vegetables, whole grains and lean proteins to your diet rather than going gluten free. Thanks to Janet Mullins, PhD, RD, UK food and nutrition extension specialist, for providing this information.

mitment paid off. Good luck to the Anderson County Marching Bearcats as you compete at the state semi-final competition this upcoming weekend.

More good luck to the St. Louis Cardinals as Game 1 of the 2013 World Series is scheduled to start today at Fenway. Many of you will not be wishing the Redbirds good luck because you're bitter about your own franchise's demise earlier in the season (I'm guessing). Or you'll just be curious as to why anyone is still talking about baseball at the end of October.

Habitat for Humanity to dedicate building in open house

The local chapter of Habitat for Humanity will host an open house Oct. 27 at 2 p.m. at 110 Coleman St., Lawrenceburg. The open house will be held to dedicate a recent building project sponsored by the local chapter of Habitat for Humanity, an event organizer said. The community is invited.

Library 'Friends' to host Halloween book sale

Friends of Anderson Public Library will host a Halloween sale Saturday, Oct. 26 at the new building located on the back lawn of the library, 114 N. Main St.

The sale will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and children dressed for Halloween will receive a free children's book of their choice.

The Highs and The Lows, a folkie acoustic duo, will entertain for several hours during the sale. Cole Ripy and Jessica Handy, who make up the Highs and Lows, are both local talent. Come and hear them before they leave for the DC area for six months, organizers said.

The sale will include large selections of fiction, biographies, war, history, Kentucky authors, gardening, cookbooks, travel, sports, westerns, science fiction, how-to, spiritual and religious books.

Large selections of genealogy books are still available along with a wide collection of children's books.

The sale will also have books on tape and CD, music CDs, DVD and VHS movies. There will be many bargain bundles, box lots and blue light specials.

Toastmaster Brandt wins to compete in Ohio

Cynthia Brandt of Lawrenceburg claimed top honors in the Bluegrass Division E Toastmasters Humorous Speech contest Oct. 19, in Winchester.

She also won the contest last year.

In her winning presentation, Brandt recounted how a seemingly romantic proposal gone wrong led to her very first 5K race.

She will advance to the District 40 Toastmasters Humorous Speech contest in Dayton, Ohio on Nov. 9, where she will compete as one of the top eight humorous speakers from central Kentucky, southern Ohio, and eastern West Virginia.

Brandt is a member of Capital City Toastmasters, which meets every Monday at noon in the John C. Watts Federal Building next to the YMCA in downtown Frankfort. Toastmasters International has 292,000 members in over 14,350 clubs in 122 countries. Its main purpose is to help members become more confident speakers and leaders.

Meetings are open to the public.

school administrators looking to curb sexting and cyberbullying — could more effectively stop it.

Saunier, who's been serving as the resource officer at the middle school since 2009, said he handled 20 cases of sexting out of 30 total bullying and harassment incidents at the middle school — the most he's seen in recent years.

Compared to the more than 800 students who attend the middle school, the percentage of sexting incidents Saunier has investigated is almost insignificant.

Understanding the full ramifications and fallout of sexting isn't, according to Saunier.

Sexting is not just sending a photo to a friend, he said.

"They have to understand, it is child pornography," Saunier said of students sharing inappropriate photos.

Four Anderson County eighth grade boys said they do define sexting as child pornography.

"Cause you're giving it to other people, you're showing it," one boy explained in an interview with The Anderson News.

All four students use the smart phone photo-sharing apps Instagram and Snapchat, but said they would delete an inappropriate photo right away if they received one.

A few said they'd tell their parents first, and then delete the photo.

All four boys said they've heard of other students sending inappropriate photos to one another at the middle school.

A male seventh grade student and a female seventh grader said they had an idea of what sexting was, but couldn't define it.

"I know it's wrong," the female seventh grader said. "It's gross."

A female high school senior said she's heard of other female students in her class getting caught sexting, but that she's never received inappropriate photos or texts or sent any to others.

"I don't see why people do that or see the need to do that," she said of sexting. "I'd be more worried about my parents finding out, or people in the community. It would spread like wildfire."

Surveys from 4,400 American middle and high school students reported that 8 percent of them sent naked or seminude images of themselves and 13 percent said they received similar pictures from classmates, according to a 2010 study titled "Reducing Teen Technology" cited in a Federal Bureau of Investigation report published in June 2013.

File photo

Office Joe Saunier of the Lawrenceburg Police Department is the middle school resource officer. Saunier is working with school officials to combat sexting and cyberbullying.

Hundreds of school resource officers interviewed for the same FBI study said cyberbullying was a serious problem warranting a law enforcement response.

Saunier said he agrees, but the law comes in as a last resort, he said.

Saunier said he's had to charge two students for harassing communications over the four years he's been a resource officer.

"Sometimes kids look at it like it's a trophy," Saunier, who defines underage sexting as any student sending seminaked or completely nude photos of themselves to others. "They're not afraid of the shame."

Most of the sexting incidents Saunier has handled at the middle school usually aren't about spreading a photo to bully someone else, he said.

Past sexting incidents at the middle school included girls sending photos to one another or a girlfriend sending a photo to a boyfriend and vice versa, Saunier said. A couple may have broken up and one of them still has the incriminating photo in her phone, he added.

Three cases resulted in someone posting a photo on a pornographic site, Saunier said. Two were female students, he said, and one was a male student.

About 90 percent of the time, Saunier said, the parents are the ones that report the behavior.

"Most times, the cyberbullying occurs outside of school — on weekends and in the evenings," Anderson County Middle School Principal Jeanna Kidd said via e-mail. "When it is reported to school officials that an bullying incident has occurred outside of the school day, we notify Officer Saunier so that he can assist in dealing with out of school issues. When the cyberbullying occurs during the school day, school administrators address the situation, administer necessary consequences, and notify the parents of the students who are involved."

Although the middle school does not have a specific policy on sexting, middle school administrators have implemented a new procedure in an attempt to end repeat incidents of bullying and harassment.

A counselor or administrator meets with a student reported to have bullied or harassed someone else individually, Kidd said.

"During this initial meeting, we review the definitions of bullying, harassment and sexual harassment with the individual because often

What is the technology use policy at the middle school?

Students must register all devices with the school's system and pass a "digital driver's license test," which can address a variety of topics such as cyberbullying, teen suicide, sexting and how students' personal information can go quickly viral and spread, according to middle school library media specialist Jennifer Miller.

Cell phones and similar devices cannot be out in the hallways or used in the school building unless a teacher has given students permission to use devices in class or for another purpose.

Tablets, iPads, laptops and other personally owned electronic devices can be used on the school's wireless in class if given permission by their teacher.

The district's overall technology acceptable use policy also explicitly prohibits sharing confidential information about students or employees; sending or displaying offensive messages or pictures; using obscene language; and harassing, insulting, bullying or attacking others while on the network.

times, a student does not understand or know what those really are," she said.

Both the staff member and the student sign the form documenting the meeting so that if there is a future offense with the same student, Kidd said, staff members can share the child had knowledge that their behavior was inappropriate and knew not to do it again as asked by administrators.

Saunier credits this new procedure and attached form with the decrease in sexting and bullying incidents that he's seen this school year.

By the second week of school, he was already dealing with his first bullying investigation, Saunier said.

Starting Monday, middle school students would be receiving lessons on bullying awareness during advisory classes, Kidd said.

Saunier said he's been asked to give talks about cyberbullying, Internet use and sexting (possibly to a few church groups) in the coming weeks. He said sexting is still a problem with students, but it's not contagious.

His advice to help end underage sexting?

"Don't be afraid to address it," he said. "Whether they're doing it or not, they need to address it so they don't. Be a parent."

One Anderson County high school senior agreed.

"I think it starts at home," she said. "I think any issue that arises in a child's life starts at home."

Misery Manor going strong heading into final two weekends

From staff reports

Misery Manor, an exceptional haunted house filled with chain-saw-wielding maniacs, scary clowns and flesh-munching zombies, enters its third weekend Friday and Saturday from 7:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

A fundraiser for Sheriff Troy Young's Shop With a Cop program, Misery Manor has drawn 1,200 visitors since opening Oct. 3 to rave reviews.

Admission is only $5, and all proceeds go to Shop With a Cop, which provides Christmas gifts for children in need.

Misery Manor, located at Eagle Lake Convention Center, will also be open Oct. 28-30 from 7:30 to 11 p.m., and on Halloween from 7:30 p.m. until the line is empty.

For more information (and scares) visit misery-manor.com.

'Travel the Art Trail' through town next Saturday

Local artists show off work in open studio sale

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Six local artists, posed and smiling behind a table displaying selected pieces of their work, possess more than 142 years of experience among them.

Several manipulate clay into pottery. Two artists bend metal to their will.

All six are excited to meet and greet Anderson County visitors to their third annual "Travel the Art Trail" open studio next Saturday, Nov. 2.

"This is the one day we open up our lives," Karine Maynard, who owns and operates the professional blacksmith shop Maynard Studios with her husband Matt Maynard, said.

Often sitting behind wheels or standing in front of blazing forges, all the artists — gathered for dinner at Maynards' Fox Creek home to discuss Art Trail preparations — agreed the nature of creating art can be lonely work.

The Art Trail, which will trace a short route from Lawrenceburg to Salvisa to Harrodsburg, connects not only the five peer-recognized art studios (four of them have joined in the past with the selective Kentucky Arts Council), but also the artists with one another er and those who come to appreciate what they do.

During last year's art trail, Karine Maynard said, about 200 people visited their Fox Creek blacksmith shop in one day.

"Well, I'm isolated on a hilltop, so it's very important that I have human contact," Art Trail artist Cynthia Carr of Crosswinds Pottery, who lives 10 miles from Lawrenceburg, joked.

Art Trail newcomer Mitzi Lutes, a Salvisa resident and owner of Lucto Pottery, said although she may have friends and family gathered near the kiln, the nearly 2,400 degree F. kiln is what demands her concentration.

"When you're doing a wood firing, it commands 100 percent of your attention," Lutes said.

Participants in this year's open studio may find they need to divide their attentions between a free shuttle service known as "Tha Bus Shizzle" that will transport them from studio to studio, several artist demonstrations, hors d'oeuvres and refreshments, and of course, the art itself.

Karine Maynard said her studio will feature blacksmith demonstrations, a guest glassblower with blow-your-own-glass (call ahead reservation required) and a fake anvil for children to lift above their heads for cute photo ops.

Other studios will also host guest artists: the Maynards' Fox Creek neighbor Marianne Brown of Marianne Brown Pottery said guest artist Erica Kirchner will have folded metal creatures or "creature comforts" on display and for sale at Brown's shop.

Susan Burge, who owns Elements Clay Studio next to Four Roses Distillery, will also have pottery demonstrations.

Lutes said in addition to her pottery, her husbands' photography would be on display for purchase.

Carr, also a potter, works in mixed media and will have custom limited edition lamps.

The beginning of November is the perfect time of the year to offer an open studio like the Art Trail, the artists said, because art shows are essentially over, deadlines for any Christmas rush orders are still at bay and customers are starting

An added plus: an excuse to explore and get to know new members and reconnect with previous studio participants through the Art Trail event.

EDUCATION BRIEFS

School board president elected to state board

James Sargent, president of the Anderson County school board, was recently elected to the Kentucky School Boards Association, the largest organization of elected officials in Kentucky, according to a news release.

Sargent

Sargent will serve a three-year term as Central Kentucky Region chairperson of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA). He will represent school board members from the Anderson, Bourbon, Boyle, Clark, Estill, Fayette, Franklin, Garrard, Harrison, Jackson, Jessamine, Lincoln, Madison, Mercer, Montgomery, Nicholas, Powell, Robertson, Rockcastle, Scott and Woodford county districts and the Berea, Burgin, Danville, Frankfort and Paris independent systems on the association's 27-member governing board.

Sargent is in his fourth year on the Anderson County School Board. A graduate of the Frankfort High School and Bluegrass Community and Technical College, he is a service technician for AT&T.

Sargent is recipient of the KSBA Kids First Advocacy Award and serves on the board of directors of the Anderson County/Franklin County Court Appointed Special Advocates. He replaces Woodford County board member Ambrose Wilson IV on the KSBA board.

Established in 1936, the nearly 900-member KSBA represents school districts and local boards of education in all of Kentucky's public school systems, providing training, consultation, advocacy and numerous other services to school officials statewide.

All are guilty in rejecting the word of God

“I see the sun ... it is beautiful.” These were the words of George Souliotes as he was walking out of a California prison a free man, after spending 17 years incarcerated for a crime he was innocent of.

Brian Owens
Faith columnist

The 72-year-old Greek immigrant, who was convicted of triple murder, had his case taken up by an innocence project that worked to overturn his sentence, re-examining and disproving much of the forensic evidence that was used to condemn him.

In an article titled “Adjusting to Freedom,” LA Times reporter Maura Dolan writes of Mr. Souliotes’ experience getting resettled in a world that has changed drastically in the nearly two decades since he lost that freedom. She writes about his anxiety of bumping into someone, which in prison could get you stabbed, and of his using a smartphone for the first time.

Most of us will never spend two decades locked up for a crime we did not commit. Such an egregious mistake is not entirely impossible though, as there are hundreds of men and women who are sitting in jail cells right now serving time for an offense they are innocent of, most of whom do not have the benefit of pro bono attorneys working to secure their release.

While we may never end up like Mr. Souliotes, that does not mean we are not guilty of a crime. In fact, you, me, every person who is living and every person that has ever lived, including Mr. Souliotes, is guilty of something so heinous, so atrocious, that if we were to go unpunished it would be the height of injustice – we are guilty of rejecting God and his word.

This rejection goes back to our first parents in the Garden. Life, peace and happiness abundant were laid before them on the condition of obedience to one command. Within this simple command was bound up their unfettered relationship with their creator. Such a command was given to demonstrate to them that while God had provided everything good for their enjoyment, he was to be their chief and all-sufficient enjoyment. Their subsequent rebellion and rejection of God and his standards opened the floodgates of sin and sorrow; and their innocence was lost.

The only people who knew true innocence chose rebellion over relationship, and the fruit that at first tasted so sweet to their palate was found out to be disease-infested, and the rancid after-taste still lingers in our mouths today. We may not have been in the garden that day but the rind is nevertheless stuck between our teeth and the juice running down our chins; we are all guilty of disobeying God for something that looks sweeter than submission to divine authority.

Every person is born with a bent toward sin. This is called depravity, and while you or I may not be as bad as we can be, we are indeed as bad off as we can be.

We come into this world as self-centered rebels, and unless some outside influence is applied to us we stay self-centered rebels.

Our sin separates us from the one who created us. Our rejection of God for the dainties the world offers may seem to free us up to live as we want, but in reality they imprison us.

Like Mr. Souliotes, we need someone to take up our case; but not to prove our innocence. We need someone who is perfect to exchange his perfection for our sinfulness, thus making us perfect and innocent in our judicial standing before a holy God.

This is exactly what the Lord Jesus Christ did. 2 Corinthians 5:21 tells us that “for our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God.” Jesus, the only innocent man, endured God’s wrath for sin, so that those who trust Him by grace through faith alone could be justified freely in Him (Rom. 3:24-26). Only through repentance and faith in Christ can we know what freedom from sin feels like.

And once you do, once you see the Son, you will reiterate Mr. Souliotes’ sentiment, he is beautiful.

CHURCH BRIEFS

Pigeon Fork Baptist Church to host ‘Trunk or Treat’

Pigeon Fork Baptist Church will be hosting a “Trunk or Treat” event Oct. 31 from 5-7 p.m.

There will be trick-or-treating for children along with games, food (chili, soup, hot dogs and desserts), a cake walk and face painting. “So, dress up in your favorite costume and join us,” event organizers said.

Pigeon Fork Baptist Church is located at 5090 Hickory Ridge Road in Waddy.

Alton Christian Church youth group to host ‘GodFest’

Alton Christian Church will host its “GodFest” on Oct. 25 from 6-9 p.m. at Party On, located next to Kroger in the Kroger shopping center off US 127.

“If your little ones are looking to have a really good time in a nice and safe environment we hope to see them here,” event organizers said in a press release.

The event will feature snacks, drinks, games and prizes for children ages 5-11, according to an event organizer.

For more information, contact achristian@roadrunner.com or call 502-859-5170.

Tide had turned before fake punt gone awry
Bearcats simply repeated their familiar pattern to win district

The call was a curious one, no question. It might have not been completely unexpected, but was still one that Franklin County coach Chris Tracy had to know would open himself up to second-guessing, at best, or criticism if it did not work.

The call was a fake punt with Franklin facing a fourth-and-5 situation on its own 14 yard line. Only 77 seconds were left in the first half in Friday's showdown for the Class 5A, District 6 championship against Anderson County.

John Herndon
Sports Editor

When Anderson called time-out, most thought it was simply to stop the clock to give the Bearcats, who were down 21-14 at the time, more time to tie things before the break.

But during the time out, Anderson coach Mark Peach and several of his assistants could be seen taking a long look across the field at the Franklin bench. It was like they suspected the Flyers might have something funny up their sleeve.

When the ball was snapped, Franklin punter Zach Durham tried to pass to the left side. Had it worked, Tracy might have been called a swashbuckling gambler who dared to discard the proverbial book, even when the risk is the highest.

It backfired. It backfired horribly for Franklin County.

Anderson smelled it coming and Chase Sutherland appeared to get a hand on the ball, causing it to fall harmlessly away from any Flyer receiver. Three plays later, Anderson's Ross Cox flipped into the end zone. Joe Rose tied things with his extra point.

There can be little argument that the failed gamble was huge in the Bearcats' 35-21 win over the Flyers. But saying the curious play call was "the turning point," as has been common, is failing to see how thoroughly Anderson dominated Franklin over the final 41 minutes Friday night to win the District 6 title.

The turning point? It actually came much earlier when Anderson put together a 15-play, 80-yard drive on its third possession.

The Bearcats' first two drives netted 15 and five yards and ended with two turnovers. Franklin had 72 yards on 10 plays and led 14-0.

From that point on, Anderson gained 374 yards, while Franklin accumulated 127. Of Franklin's total, 60 yards were on one play, a scoring pass from Barrett Sanderson to Lorenzo McCaskill.

After being down 14-0, the Bearcats put together drives of 80 and 85 yards.

And if someone has been around Anderson football all of the 2013 season, it was not something entirely new. It perfectly fit what has been the pattern for this edition of the Bearcats who do not start extremely fast, but clamp down and wear out their opponents as the game goes on.

Now, through eight games, Anderson has outscored its opponents 49-48 in the first quarter. Over the remaining three periods, the Bearcats have a 263-94 advantage.

That, as much as anything, is what I like about this Anderson County team. Even after practically giving an explosive Franklin County team a pair of gift touchdowns in the first seven minutes Friday, there was no panic. It was business as usual for a team that has designs on much more than a district title.

What's a Bearcat? Anderson answers with resounding win

Defense clamps down on way to district title

By John Herndon

As Franklin County's football team took the field at Hollie Warford Stadium Friday night, the Flyers ran through a banner that simply asked the question, "What's a Bearcat?"

On the web

See more photos of the Bearcats' win over Franklin County and see all of the playoff possibilities at www.theandersonnews.com.

Over the next two hours or so, or 48 minutes of game clock time, the Flyers got a resounding answer they would never find in Wikipedia or through a Google search.

Anderson County showed that a Bearcat is a creature that won't stay down, makes the most of its opportunities and digs its claws deep into its prey before forcing it into submission.

At least that is what the 2013 version of the Anderson County Bearcats did Friday night in a 35-21 win over Franklin that also gave Anderson the Class 5A, District 6 championship.

"When we were down 14-0 and 21-7, there are a lot of teams that would have just said, 'It's not our night,' and just cash it in," Anderson coach Mark Peach said. "These kids didn't do that."

It would have been easy to give in, seeing that the last two years, Ryan Timmons led Franklin to a couple of wins over the Bearcats.

But Timmons is now doing his thing in Lexington for the Kentucky Wildcats.

Timmons watched Friday's showdown from the sidelines, but it seemed to matter little as his former teammates jumped to a 14-0 lead in the first seven minutes, then struck quickly to go up 21-7 early in the second quarter.

But after Franklin's Lorenzo McCaskill raced 60 yards with a Barrett Sanderson pass to build that 21-7 cushion with 9:45 to play before halftime, Anderson simply dominated.

A team scoring 47 points a game, Franklin was shut out for the final 33:45. To find the last time Franklin scored 21 points or less, one had to go back to the 2010 state playoffs, when the Flyers scored just 14 in a loss to East Jessamine.

A team averaging 432 yards of offense a game - most of which had featured a running clock in the second half - Franklin ended up with 199 for the game, 129 coming in those first 14:15.

Shelby ousts Lady Bearcat volleyball

SHELBYVILLE - Few expected it to end this way.

Especially after Anderson County had beaten Shelby County twice during the 2013 volleyball season, few thought the Lady Bearcats would go down in three sets to that same Shelby team in the 30th District Tournament semifinals, held Monday night at Collins High School.

Shelby squeaked by the Lady Bearcats 27-25 in the first set, then took convincing wins, 25-18 and 25-21. The Lady Rockets, now 9-10 on the Collins, which also beat Shelby twice this year, routed Spencer County in the first match Monday night.

Anderson finished the year at 19-16.

For much of the first set, things looked as if they would go to the wire, as expected. The teams traded leads five times and were tied on eight different occasions.

Crappie stockings add to great fall fishing

By Lee McClellan
Ky. Dept. of Fish & Wildlife Resources

The incredible weather so far this fall has many in Kentucky thinking about football, deer hunting, Keeneland and crappie fishing.

Crappie fishing? Yes, crappie fishing. This may be the most consistent time of year to catch a species most associate with the spring dogwood blooms. Water temperatures are now dropping into the best range for good fall fishing.

To help ensure good fishing in future years, the fisheries division of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will stock roughly 260,000 2- to 4-inch white and black crappie from Kentucky Lake in the west to Paintsville Lake in the east over the next few weeks.

Paintsville Lake in Johnson and Morgan counties received 35,000 black crappie last week. Carr Creek Lake in Knott County was to receive 14,000 white crappie on Oct. 21 while Taylorsville Lake in Spencer, Anderson and Nelson counties was to receive 61,000 white crappie on the same day. The Blood River embayment on Kentucky Lake gets about 150,000 white crappie Oct. 24.

“The stockings are part of a research study to evaluate whether crappie stockings in bad reproductive years will improve crappie populations down the road,” said Gerry Buynak, assistant director of fisheries for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife.

Eastern Kentucky anglers have three good crappie lakes to hit this fall. Buckhorn Lake in Leslie and Perry counties, Dewey Lake in Floyd County and Fishtrap Lake in Pike County all hold good crappie populations, contrary to the belief that other parts of the state are the main crappie strongholds.

Kevin Frey, eastern fisheries district biologist for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife, said the upper lake regions of these lakes are the places to crappie fish right now.

“Target structure on the shallow mud flats in the upper parts of these lakes,” Frey said. “All three of these lakes are putting out nice, big fish, but Dewey seems to be doing a little better. It has a lot of black crappie over 11 inches and many white crappie in the 14- to 15-inch range.” Anglers may want to fish Dewey soon as the winter drawdown begins Nov. 1.

Anglers will catch high numbers of crappie at Green River Lake this fall.

“Green River Lake is in the fall turnover,” said Eric Cummins, southwestern fisheries district biologist for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. “I would fish above Emerald Isle in the Robinson Creek arm and above Holmes Bend in the Green River Lake arm right now. The lower lake hasn’t turned over yet.”

Cummins recommends anglers target brush in the middle of coves with live minnows. “You’ll have to weed through fish to get some keepers, but you will catch a lot of them,” he said.

Barren River Lake

is also undergoing fall turnover. Cummins said anglers should fish the upper half of the lake as well. “They’ve been catching nice crappie all summer and into fall,” he said. “We have some nice black crappie in the 11-inch range in Barren and good numbers of white crappie a little larger.”

The white crappie at Kentucky Lake are on deep brush piles in 12- to 20-feet of water in the mouths of creeks such as Jonathan Creek and along deeper channels in the major creeks such as Blood River. Fish chartreuse and red tube jigs rigged on 1/16-ounce leadheads for these fish.

With colder weather coming, black crappie will move shallow along pea gravel banks on Kentucky Lake. Cast 1/8-ounce chartreuse Roadrunners or lime green curly-tailed grubs rigged on the same weight leadhead near the bank. Work these lures back to the boat with a steady retrieve, similar to bass fishing with a crankbait.

Stay well off the banks and cast as far as possible. Black crappie spook from the shallows with the slightest sound from a tackle box lid or dropped pair of pliers.

Anglers report recently catching nice crappie from the Fishing Creek arm of Lake Cumberland on small shad-shaped soft plastic lures. The Ohio River is also producing nice white crappie off brush in backwater areas.

Hit these waters this fall for some of the most consistent crappie fishing of the year. You don’t have to wait until the dogwood blooms next spring for some highly productive fishing.

Spencer slips past Lady Bearcats in district final shootout

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Jason Earnest has been known to shed tears after a post-season loss, but the Anderson County girls' soccer coach could only muster a faint smile last Wednesday night.

The Lady Bearcats had just taken visiting Spencer County through two overtimes before falling in a penalty-kick shootout in the 30th District girls' soccer tournament championship game.

"This was the best game we have played all season. It is not even close," said Earnest, who has had his share of outstanding teams in his tenure. "We were sharp. We were ready. We had a lot of really good opportunities against a really good team."

The cruel reality of sports is that one's best is not always enough.

Such was the case last Wednesday when the youthful Lady Bearcats came up just short.

Earnest could smile. "We played as well as we can play," Earnest said several times in his post-game interview.

For his players, however, that reality might have made it hurt that much more.

Spencer took the shootout, 3-1, to win its 13th straight game and go 19-3-1 on the year.

Anderson County's Grace Casciola (22) tries to get the ball from Spencer County's Hanna Jagers during the 30th District championship game.

Anderson fell to 6-13-2.

Anderson simply could not find the net from 12 yards out, while Spencer was perfect in finally getting the ball past Lady Bearcat freshman goalie Billie Clark, whose incredible play through 90 minutes had played a major role in Spencer being shut out.

Early in the second half, Clark, who was named to the all-district tournament team, made a spectacular save on a shot by Spencer standout Madison Ratchford, one of the state's leading scorers. Clark dove and somehow was able to hang on to the rocket, despite the ball being wet from intermittent rain.

"Billie is a freshman," Earnest said. "She has learned so much. Tonight was kind of a justification for using her as our goal keeper. She was fantastic. The ball was wet. The ground was wet. (Spencer County is) experienced and very fast and have scored a lot of goals this year. She was fantastic."

With a stellar defense repeatedly thwarting Spencer's pounding at the net, the Lady Bearcats put themselves in position to pull the upset. Sweeper Mary Lee made several outstanding clears while the entire Anderson defense played major roles in keeping Spencer out of the net on several occasions.

Anderson had several chances to dent the scoreboard in regulation,

Lady Bearcats in regional tournament

The Anderson County girls' soccer team dropped a 1-0 decision at Simon Kenton Monday night in the first round of the Eighth Region Tournament. The game ended too late for any other information to be included in this edition of The Anderson News.

A complete report of the contest will appear online at www.theandersonnews.com and will also appear in the Oct. 30 edition of The Anderson News.

the best coming with just over 23 minutes to play when Allie Johnson grazed the outside of the Spencer goalpost, just missing what could have been the winning goal. "That was so close," Earnest said. "Allie had their goal keeper beat. There was no way she was going to cover that shot. It just glanced the post and missed. She was just inches from a goal. INCHES."

The Lady Cats, like Spencer, also had several chances to score on rebounds but were unable to convert. With 30 minutes to play, the ball momentarily got away from Spencer goalie Jasmine Thomas but Anderson's Anna Cornish was shielded just enough from getting the ball with a chance to drive it in to an open net.

The Lady Bearcats also had a golden opportunity with 1:59 left in the second overtime. After Spencer was called for a foul in the penalty box, Niki Curtsinger just missed high on a penalty kick that would have ended the game in sudden death.

"Niki is one of our best penalty kickers," Earnest said. "Make it and the game is over."

"I told her to keep her head up. I make her take one of our final five (in the shootout). She is frustrated and is down on herself, but she is a wonderful player and was all over the field tonight."

Curtsinger was named to the all-tournament team, joining Clark and Carrie Isaacs from Anderson.

As Spencer rejoiced in the background, Earnest could only smile again as he thought of how his team performed on the biggest stage of the year.

"We had our opportunities. Spencer County is a really good team and they are on a roll. They are well-coached. They are really fast, but we were step-by-step with them."

"I am very proud of how we played."

Shelby County ends Bearcat soccer season

By John Herndon
Sports editor

There would be no offensive explosion this time around.

And this time, an elimination game in the first round of the 30th District soccer tournament, was the one that is remembered.

Visiting Shelby County made Anderson County's season end on a sour note with a dominating performance and a 3-0 win in the 30th District Tournament semifinals.

The Rockets got goals from Cole Meredith and Julio Morales in the first half, then put things away midway through the second half when Meredith found the net again.

But what might have been most annoying for Anderson was that the Bearcats did not seem to put up a smart fight in an elimination contest.

"We were pretty much ineffective with the ball," Bearcat coach Khamisi Campbell said. "We didn't make good decisions and we didn't do anything well with the ball."

Not only did Shelby take control when Morales ripped one home from about 30 yards out late in the first half, but Anderson was unable to mount any kind of offensive pressure on the Rocket defense with good looks.

Last month, Anderson had exploded for a David Simmons hat trick in a six-minute span to beat Shelby 5-2 on the same pitch the Bearcats call home.

David Simmons (19) battles Shelby County's Cameron Weeks for possession.

Campbell said the only thing different this time was how the Bearcats approached the game.

"For the most part, we knew how they were going to play and they played the same way they did the first time. They did what they did the first time," Campbell said. "We just didn't respond well. We didn't match them physically and didn't keep the ball."

Shelby was clearly the aggressor this time, winning the vast majority of free balls and appearing to intimidate or frustrate the Bearcats with physical play. Nothing appeared to be dirty and Campbell did not complain about a night filled with high-speed collisions.

"We just weren't up for it," he said. "There was no one up for it. From the captain on down to the youngest players, there was nobody there."

Shelby got on the board during the 16th minute when Meredith caught Anderson goalie Jordan Thompson heading one way. Meredith fired against the grain to give the Rockets the only goal they would need.

Morales followed 11 minutes later with a missile that Thompson could not reach.

"It could have been it," Campbell replied when asked if the second goal could have been the dagger that killed the Bearcats. "That was a good goal.

"All the goals they scored, we deserved to concede. We did not do what we were supposed to do technically."

Campbell, however, had noted his team's youth even in pre-season. He offered that the Bearcats had gotten better despite the bitter end.

"I think technically, the kids grasped the style of play we want," he said. "They have grown up and they understand how to play. They have improved technically and tactically."

But the final contest was much like the Bearcats' season.

"There have been too many ups and downs," Campbell said. "Even our seniors are young according to soccer ability. This is youth soccer. They are going to make mistakes and they are going to have ups and downs."

This is what coaching high school soccer is unless you have a stacked roster every year. Coaching high school is just like this. You have the ups and downs.

"You learn and grow with it and it is not always about winning and losing. Sometimes there is too much emphasis placed on district titles. You want to shape young players not just on the field but off the field."

"As a coach, I hope I have made a difference in their lives. I hope they have some kind of growth from it as soccer players and people."

Anderson appeared to be in good shape, leading 16-12. But after a Shelby timeout, the Lady Rockets rallied to take a 20-16 lead behind the service of senior Kyndle Pace. Anderson put together a run of its own and, leading 24-23, had a chance to win the set. Instead a ball sailed out of bounds, giving Shelby life. The Rockets scored the final two points for the win.

Anderson stayed close in the second set but only led at 8-7 before Shelby took control. In the final set, Anderson built an early 5-2 lead, but Shelby scored nine straight points on a service from freshman Abby Wills.

Anderson never was able to pull even again. The Lady Bearcats got within 16-14, but were plagued by indecision and miscommunications through the final two sets.

Anderson had won four of its last six matches but had not played in 11 days. And a subpar performance against an inspired team spelled the end to Anderson's season.

FOOTBALL

downs on the night, only two came after going up 21-7. It was simply a championship defensive effort by the Bearcats. “Last week, we held (West Jessamine’s) Devin Taylor, the leading rusher in the state, to 81 yards,” said Peach, who became the winningest coach in Bearcat history with 70. “The week before, we held Woodford County to three points. We have been playing some pretty good defense throughout the season.”

But given that Franklin had not lost a regular-season game since 2010 and had scored fewer than 42 points only once - a 28-24 win over Beechwood - this year, Friday might have been Anderson’s most impressive outing yet.

Few could have envisioned anything less than something that resembled last year’s 56-52 thriller. “Probably not,” Anderson linebacker Tristin Ashburn said. “Their offense is so dynamic. They have so many screens and they can use (Chris) Roberts to go up the middle.”

“McCaskell was killing us in the first half,” added the Bearcats’ Ross Cox, who scored three touchdowns and sealed things when he picked off Sanderson with 7:30 to play, then dove to the end zone 49 seconds later. “He had three touchdowns and got some big plays. We played great in the second half.”

Anderson had practically given Franklin two scores early. The first came when a pass looked to get away from Carmichael on the Bearcats’ first possession. Franklin’s Malik Barrett swiped the throw near midfield and returned it to the Anderson 47.

Nine plays later, McCaskell snared Sanderson’s 4-yard toss in the end zone.

Less than a minute later,

McCaskell scored from 25 yards on a beautifully-executed reverse that had been set up when Cox fumbled.

Franklin’s 14-0 lead had come with 5:06 left in the first quarter. “Stuff like that happens,” Cox said. “You have to regroup and you can’t worry about it. I felt like we did a great job after we messed up those two times.”

“We wanted to stay focused and play together,” added linebacker Huston Page. “Coach Peach said (at halftime) it was the little mistakes that were keeping us down.”

Anderson settled in with a 15-play, 80-yard march that ended with quarterback Zachary Carmichael scoring from a yard out.

Then after McCaskell’s jaunt, Anderson went 85 yards in eight plays with Carmichael firing a 22-yard bullet to an open Brayden Russell with 5:50 remaining in the first half.

After trading punts, the Bearcats got the break they might have needed.

Pinned inside their own 15, Franklin gambled.

And lost. Punter Zack Durham passed toward Cody Lee on fourth-and-5. It failed as Anderson’s Chase Sutherland got a hand on the throw. Three plays later, Cox flipped over the goal line to tie things with 28 seconds left in the half.

Cox added a pair of fourth quarter scores, finding paydirt from the four to punctuate a 95-yard scoring march, then putting the finishing touches on things with his final score midway through the final frame. Oddly, Cox, one of the state’s top receivers, did not catch a pass. Running out of the backfield, Cox carried the ball 18 times for 63 yards.

But while Cox was putting points on the board, his defensive teammates were generally making life miserable for the visitors. McCaskell, who had come in averaging 17 yards every time he touched the ball, averaged just 4.9 yards a carry and caught three passes, other than his touchdowns, that netted two yards.

Anderson simply dominated the second half, limiting Franklin to 57 yards and overcoming field position woes that saw the Bearcats start drives from their own one and own five. The latter, however, turned out to be the one that broke Franklin’s back as the Bearcats marched the length of the field to take the lead for the first time.

On the second play of the drive, Ashburn got loose for 39 yards on a simple handoff up the middle. Five plays later, Cox scored from four yards.

“When Tristin got loose, we were able to get the ball in the middle of the field and score,” Peach said. “That is when we were able to take control.

Over the next 90 seconds, Cox picked off a Sanderson pass and made a plunge to the end zone that completed Anderson’s coronation as district champs.

“I just read the quarterback’s eyes and he threw it long,” said Cox, who made a spectacular over-the-shoulder pick before returning it 25 yards.

“We talked to the kids at the half and they listened well,” Peach said. “They came out the second half and did what we asked.

“What I like about this group of kids is it is not one person. Certainly, Ross is our best player, but sometimes, it’s Zachary. Sometimes, it’s Tristin Ashburn or Brayden Russell. Chris Toomey had a fantastic night running and catching the ball. Our offensive line has been consistent all year.”

It added up to a simple answer to the question, “What’s a Bearcat?” The answer: A district champion.

Bearcats look for high performance against Jaguars

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

All season long, Anderson County football coach Mark Peach has preached a two-word sermon to his team: No excuses.

There would be no excuses of the Bearcats going against the toughest schedule they have faced since Peach arrived in 2005, and one of the toughest in school history.

There would be no alibis given for poor field conditions or, heaven forbid, letdowns.

However, it would appear that a letdown would be Anderson’s biggest enemy Friday when the Bearcats travel to East Jessamine for the final district game of the season.

“I would hope not,” Peach said, when asked about the possibility of a letdown. But the question is legitimate. After all, the Bearcats have already clinched the Class 5A, District 6 title. They whipped arch-rival Franklin County Friday night and are ranked No. 2 in Class 5A in the Courier-Journal Litkenhous Ratings.

The Bearcats, 7-1 and ranked No. 2 in Class 5A by the Litkenhous Ratings that appears in the Courier-Journal, are ranked as six-touchdown favorites, or better, against a Jaguar team that comes in at 1-7.

Peach, however, says there is still plenty to play for.

“I would hope the focus would be on continuing to get better and peaking at the right time for the playoffs,” he said.

If recent history is any indicator, Anderson has played well against East Jessamine. A year ago, following a heart-breaking loss to Franklin, the Bearcats rolled past East Jessamine 63-19. Two years ago, going to East Jessamine after taking a beating from Franklin, the Bearcats rolled to a 50-16 win.

Peach says East Jessamine is probably better than its record suggests.

A team that was expected to contend for a state playoff berth, East hit a funk after a 35-33 loss to West Jessamine on Sept. 20. That one started a five-game losing streak.

Last week, East Jessamine dropped a 13-6 decision to Spencer County.

“They have size on both sides of the ball and they have two capable running backs in Jared Caudill and Kahned Leslie,” Peach says.

While Anderson will be playing for playoff momentum, East can only be playing for pride and a chance to knock off one of the state’s best as the Jaguars have been eliminated from playoff consideration.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

DISTRICT

Over the last two weeks, Anderson has held the state’s leading rusher to 81 yards, then shut down a high-powered attack that had been scoring 47 points and gaining 432 yards a game, despite a running clock in half of them.

Anderson’s offensive stats are mighty good but don’t turn heads as much as some eye-popping pyrotechnics. Yet Anderson’s defensive numbers are indicators of what championship teams do. Suffice it to say if Anderson continues to play defense like it has been, it will be very tough to beat.

Back to that fake punt call.

There is no way I would have made that call, not that deep in my own territory and certainly not with less than two minutes left in the first half.

That no-holds-barred daring, however, has been part of Franklin’s resurgence as one of Kentucky’s best programs. If Sutherland does not make a nice play, the pass is likely completed and Franklin goes into halftime up seven instead of tied.

Would things have changed had that one play turned out differently? Would the Flyers have still punted twice near midfield when they pinned Anderson inside the five? Would they have faked then, when it is more predictable? We will never know.

But at the same time, the script Anderson County had used all season was simply repeating itself. The vise was tightening long before the Members of the Anderson County coaching staff, including head coach Mark Peach, center, and several members of the Bearcat defense appear to suspect Franklin County might be up to some trickery during a timeout immediately preceding a fake punt late in the first half of Friday’s game. The fake punt failed, setting up a crucial touchdown.

HOROSCOPES

December 22–January 19

Feel like a psychiatrist? You will this week, as people lean on you left and right. Be sympathetic, but honest, Capricorn. It's the only way to make a real difference.

March 21–April 19

Anxiety on the rise? Not with you in charge, Aries. You know just what to say to alleviate concerns and keep everyone on task. A promotion could be in order.

June 22–July 22

Health issues plague a senior. Be supportive, Cancer, but don't coddle them. They need to know the extent of the damage in order to get serious about the treatment.

September 23–October 22

Hobbies are calling your name, Libra. You need a break, and you need one now. Grab that paintbrush or knitting needle, and put your frustrations to work.

January 20–February 18

Volunteer work brings satisfaction along with opportunity. Don't miss out, Aquarius. Progress on a home improvement project wanes. Call in the pros.

April 20–May 20

Trusty Taurus. People look to you for assistance in good times and bad, and you do not disappoint. Many blessings are sure to follow.

July 23–August 22

Money woes ease with a windfall, and personal issues are resolved. Hooray, Leo. A shakeup at work proves beneficial to the bottom line.

October 23–November 21

Adopting the viewpoint of an acquaintance could prove troublesome. Do your own research and form your own opinion, Scorpio. A financial review turns out well.

February 19–March 20

Call it quits? Never, Pisces! You've got the goods to get the job done. Believe in yourself and your crew, and there is no way you'll fail. A shopping jaunt uncovers a real find.

May 21–June 21

Jeepees, Gemini. You've got everything you need and then some. Someone near and dear to your heart, on the other hand, does not.

August 23–September 22

Your managerial skills are requested for the planning of an event. Don't say no, Virgo. Work it into your schedule, as it could lead to a more lucrative opportunity.

November 22–December 21

Passion ignites with a gift, and the flames of romance burn bright. A newcomer gets the ball rolling on an account. Celebrate with a night on the town, Sagittarius.

Jokes and Riddles

Q: How do you mend a broken jack-o-lantern?

A: With a pumpkin patch.

Q: Whom did the monster invite to the Haunted House?

A: Everyone he could dig up!

COLORING PICTURE

What a Scream!

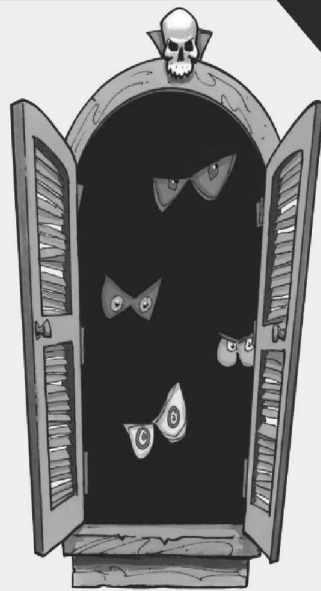

For some, there is nothing scarier than going to a haunted house. Each October, people across the country set up their own haunted house, either for trick-or-treaters or for the public at large.

Some haunted houses are scarier than others. Usually the scarier ones are open to teens and adults only or require kids to come with an adult. There is usually a fee to get into a haunted house.

Most haunted houses use a lot of props to look, sound and feel scary. Props may range from eerie music to creepy fog machines to fake rodents. Volunteers may also dress up in scary costumes and lurk around the house scaring those walking through.

NAME THAT MONSTER

Haunted houses often have scary monsters lurking in dark corners. Fill in the blanks to name some of the monsters found at a haunted house.

- 1) W I _ _ C _ _ E S

LEGAL NOTICES

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, October 31, 2013, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts herein-after set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose and any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property

4) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff.

Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder's cost.

(5) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.

PUBLIC NOTICE

American Towers LLC is proposing to construct a 199-foot overall height monopole telecommunications tower at 1316 Powell Taylor Rd, Lawrenceburg, Anderson County, KY. Tax ID 37-30-18-111-488. The new tower structure will not be lit and the tower facility will include a 100' by 100' lease area and associated easements, along with a 30-ft buffer surrounding the lease area. American Towers LLC seeks comments from all interested persons on any potential significant impact the proposed action could have on the quality of the human environment pursuant to 47 C.F.R. Section 1.1307, including potential impacts to historic or cultural resources that are listed or eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. Interested persons may comment or raise concerns about the proposed action by submitting an e-mail to services@americantower.com. Paper comments can be sent to: American Towers LLC, Attn: Environmental Compliance, 10 Presidential Way, Woburn, MA 01801.

Requests or comments should be limited to environmental and historic/cultural resource impact concerns, and must be received on or before 11/23/13. This invitation to comment is separate from any local planning/zoning process that may apply to this project.
